PROJEKTTITEL

Cultural incompatibility: Contemporary racism in Russia and its origins

PROJEKTBESCHREIBUNG

The project focuses on the ideology and practice of "cultural incompatibility" which make up a core of the modern racism. Cultural racism is a new variety of racism, which is the key manifestation of racism in Russia. It emerged under a special social and political environment in Russia, and was rooted in the Soviet political practices based on essentialization of ethnicity. The Soviet political and intellectual heritage has built up a bridge between the Soviet latent and post-Soviet open racism, which was and is manifested by appeals to "pure cultural tradition" rather than "pure blood".
