

Medien

IFK_Audio

The Revolution's Archive through Family Photographs and Artistic Discourses

Ana De Almeida

Only fifteen years separate two historical events fundamental to the constitution of two Western and Central European democracies as we know them today. The Carnation Revolution of April 1974 in Portugal and the Velvet Revolution of November 1989 in former Czechoslovakia shifted the course of local and global histories and rewrote national narratives, while playing important roles in much larger processes such as the collapse of the Eastern Bloc and the definitive dissolution of a moribund colonial empire. Lecture of IFK_Junior Fellow Ana de Almeida.